The adapted floor design lends itself very kindly to 2 households or just a large family wanting separate self-contained living. The current owners are using the garage space as a master retreat with A/C and sitting area but of course, should you be wanting a double-lockup garage instead, they've thoughtfully left the automatic garage door in place creating a store room or workshop and it would be relatively simple to convert back. All spaces both inside and out are large and in neutral tones and nice touches like french timber doors and air-conditioning just complete the amazing picture awaiting your inspection.
